Ilija Hadžić, Jonathan M. Smith

November 2003 ACM Transactions on Computer Systems (TOCS), Volume 21 Issue 4Full text available: pdf(719.03 KB) Additional Information: full citation, abstract, references, index terms

The goals of performance and flexibility are often at odds in the design of network systems. The tension is common enough to justify an architectural solution, rather than a set of context-specific solutions. The Programmable Protocol Processing Pipeline (P4) design uses programmable hardware to selectively accelerate protocol processing functions. A set of field-programmable gate arrays (FPGAs) and an associated library of network processing modules implemented in hardware are augmented with so ...

O. R. Fonorow

April 1988 Proceedings of the 10th international conference on Software engineeringFull text available: pdf(1.88 MB) Additional Information: full citation, abstract, references, index terms

This paper describes a new software test automation tool, a powerful new programming language, and the software development process that resulted when these tools were combined. A small development team of software developers and potential customers devised the unconventional process to meet a short deadline. The process produced an operational prototype or model of the entire software system that customers were able to use during the time it was being developed.
